FROM THE RABBI

The Saddest Day

A Jew is always expected to be joyous. Serving G-d with joy is the secret for Jewish survival. Optimism became the hallmark of Jewish people.

But is there any time that a Jew is allowed to be sad, or lament their lot in life? Is there a day that you are permitted to feel bad for yourself?

August 11th is Tisha B'av, Jews the world over get together to mourn the loss of the Holy Temple in Jerusalem. This is the day set aside to mourn all the communal as well as private calamities.

The rest of the year, only joy!

- Rabbi Zushe Greenberg
