FROM THE RABBI

Jewish Instinct

I'm writing this column as I'm observing my father's 10th Yahrzeit. I grew up on the stories of his years in the Russian gulag; how he risked his life multiple times in order to observe Jewish traditions and ritual.

Jewish law does not demand that a Jew should put his life at risk for a Mitzvah; on the contrary, many opinions say that it's not permitted. So why did he do it?

The honest answer is that this wasn't a rational decision. His Jewish instinct just took over and he couldn't bring himself to violate Shabbat or Kosher laws.

All of us possess that Jewish instinct and it kicks in, in the most unexpected moments!

- Rabbi Zushe Greenberg
